

Craig Sked

A Brief Resumé

Craig Sked is a Director of Corteks and is a recognised expert in the realm of Leadership and Organisational Development as well as expertise in developing Sales and Advisory capabilities. Craig is an experienced Consultant who has more than 20 years' experience working across multiple industries in several countries.

Craig holds an Honours degree in Economics and Organisational Psychology, a Post Graduate Diploma in Learning and Development and a Masters in Leadership Development and Organisational Learning from Westminster Business School, London.

Prior to joining Corteks, Craig held both Sales Leadership roles and Executive HR roles in a variety of blue-chip companies including General Motors, Sun International & National Australia Bank. Craig's commercial experience includes running a successful digital and direct banking channel in the UK. Most recently, Craig was the Head of Capability for National Australia Bank where he successfully implemented a large scale transformation program focused on improving performance of all front line leaders and banking roles.

Craig is particularly skilled at working with senior executive teams in building a high performance culture through leader led capability solutions. He was asked to coach the top 20 Executives in NAB's Business Banking division on improving their Adaptive Leadership skills.

Craig is also a qualified Executive Coach and trained in London with Dr Mark McKergow at the Centre for Solutions Focus at Work (SFWork). Craig has published numerous articles on driving organisational performance and is a key note speaker at conferences and industry bodies.